

The Sun.

THIRTY-NINTH YEAR.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1872.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

CARRY THE NEWS TO HIRAM

THE OHIO AND VIRGINIA DEMOCRACY IN LINE-OF-BATTLE.

The Ohio Democracy Rallying under the Reformation Banner. The State Convention Enduring Greeley and Brown.

CLEVELAND, June 27.—The Democratic State Convention assembled at the Rink this morning at 10 o'clock, and was called to order by Charles N. Allen, Chairman of the State Central Committee. About five thousand persons were present, the Greeley hat being the main feature of the gathering. Col. O. J. Dodd of Hamilton county was chosen temporary chairman. On taking the platform Col. Dodd made a short speech, in which he said they had met to inaugurate a new era in the political history of the State and country. He believed the platform adopted by the Cincinnati Convention, with the clear exposition given in the letter of acceptance of Hiram's Greeley, gives the coming convention the right to watch the liberal men of all parties to stand.

The Committee on Organization reported for President a resolution to nominate a man in a number of Vice-Presidential candidates, and E. C. Baldwin of Clark county for permanent Secretary with assistants. The Committee on Finance reported a treasury account with one exception was represented.

CHANGING GREETINGS WITH ILLINOIS.

THE FOLLOWING telegram from the Illinois Democratic State Convention was read:

"The members of Illinois greet the Democracy of Ohio and Virginia in the line-of-battle, and warmly shake hands with liberal Republicans.

The reader of the dispatch was received with cheer, and the following reply was returned:

"The people of Ohio and Virginia, like their brethren in Illinois, have met again in one of the great State Conventions ever held in Ohio, resolved our strength to sustain the legitimate Convention to vote for Greeley."

THE RESOLUTIONS.

The Committee on Resolutions reported the following:

"By the Democ of Ohio in Convention, it is voted to accept with the hearty approbation of the same, emanated in the letter of acceptance of Hiram's Greeley, and to endorse him for the office of President of the United States, as far as on ground upon which liberal men of all parties, including the Anti-slavery Administration and its attendant official corruption, stand."

That our delegates this day chosen to represent in the Democratic National Convention to ascertain the nomination of Greeley and Brown as our candidates for President and Vice-President,

THE TICKET.

The following nominations were then made:

"George W. Smith, of Washington, D. C., Senator; J. S. Greene, of the Supreme Court; J. S. Greene of Franklin county; Member of the Board of Public Works; A. B. Eliot, of Licking county; P. D. Parker, of Franklin; H. H. Moore, of John A. McMahon of Montgomery; H. B. Farnsworth of Chillicothe; Clinton A. White of Brown; M. A. Lewis.

A resolution was adopted, instructing the State Central Committee to issue a call for a mass meeting of Democrats of the State to be held in the interest of Greeley and Brown, for the purpose of ratifying the action of the Baltimore Convention, and for settling a national platform.

That our party may be opposed to the present corrupt Administration. Adjourned.

The Virginia Democracy Unitin Under the Liberal Banner.

RICHMOND, June 27.—The State Conservative Convention met at noon today in the Theatre, and was called to order by R. T. Daniel, Chairman of the State Central Committee, and on his motion ex-Gov. William Smith was chosen temporary chairman. Gov. Smith briefly addressed the Convention upon the business before them. To the surprise of many who anticipated a general adoption of the Greeley and Brown platform, he declared that he did not entirely Democratic and anti-Greeley, his remarks showed that while he considered it the duty of the members of his party to preserve the organization, he did not believe that the time of meeting the present corrupt administration, by seeking union with those who opposed to the party, would be in harmony with it on questions of the day.

A committee on permanent organization was appointed.

In the absence of the committee, the Hon. S. Thorne was called upon, and said he hoped in a short time there would be no strife between the two parties, and under the Liberal banner he would be Hiram's Greeley.

The old white hat covered the earnest head and warmest heart in America, Dr. Hiram, and his warmest heart near H. A. Greeley. And other wise men, all of similar import.

Each speech was received with loud applause, indicating plainly that the sentiment of the people was with the Greeley and Brown movement.

The Committee on Organization reported the Hon. John Gordeau, of Norfolk, for temporary chairman, and the report was adopted.

Each Congress and district, and the report was adopted.

On taking the chair, the President was a quiet spokesman for Greeley and Brown and the Cincinnati platform. He advanced a grand consolidation of all the elements of opposition to the Radicals and despotism, and after a brief address on the present question, adjourned.

He proposed the idea of a new nomination, and hoped Virginia would take the lead in the Liberal movements.

THE ILLINOIS UPRISING.

Platform of the Lib.-Rep. Republican Convention. A Julian against Radicalism—Senator Lyman Trumbull's speech.

SPRINGFIELD, June 27.—The Liberal Republican State Convention continued its session last evening, Horace White, the Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, reported as follows:

The Liberal Republicans of the state of Illinois, to whom we cordially approve and reaffirm the principles contained in the Cincinnati platform, and the thorough reformation of the civil service and the methods of political patronage, whereby the taxes of the people are to be collected, and the public welfare of the majority, we set the only salvation of our country.

For the administration of our State affairs every effort should be made to collect taxation by the most honest and impartial method, and to put it in the enforcement of our public buildings and in the maintenance of our public works.

We should not be afraid to assert our independence, and to demand that our public functions be conducted in a manner that will command the confidence and esteem of all the people.

For the regeneration of principles we take our stand for the principles of the party of Lincoln, and for the restoration of the Union, and for the reconstruction of the South, in the endeavor to make the Southern states, and the former slaves, and the colored people are bound enough to bind all the states of the South to the law and the aspirations of the people.

A resolution was passed on the motion of Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

The Lib.-Rep. Republicans of the Cincinnati platform, and the Radical Republicans, are to meet in conference here to the Cincinnati Convention tomorrow. Apparently the whole South and Southwest are to be represented, and the Radical Republicans, who have been so prominent in the vindication of the Radicals and the appearance of such opposition to the Radicals, are to be represented.

For the regeneration of principles we take our stand for the principles of the party of Lincoln, and for the restoration of the Union, and for the reconstruction of the South, in the endeavor to make the Southern states, and the former slaves, and the colored people are bound enough to bind all the states of the South to the law and the aspirations of the people.

A resolution was passed on the motion of Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.

Sen. Thomas followed a large course of action, first voting in the State House, and then in the State Central Committee, to select a candidate to represent that the Confederacy had been unable to agree, and said of the Radicals, "They are not fit to be the leaders of the people."

He said, "The Radicals have kept up with civilization, we have had a bourgeois among us, and Mr. Greeley will receive our hearty support. I do not know what our friends, brothers, cousins, or wife relatives for offices, sons, daughters, or wives, each color, each and every one of them, will do for Hiram."

Mr. Pennington of Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Everything is going on finely in this State, Tennessee, and the people are well informed, and are uniting to support their own cause.

At the meeting of the State Central Committee, which was then agitating the cause of the Radicals, and which led to the formation of new party, and which is now in the Senate as the representative events of the most momentous character have occurred, the people are uniting with the Radicals, and the organization has been formed for that purpose.

SENATOR THOMAS' SPEECH.